Manor Vale - the ancient woodland in which we are located - has been established over a thousand years at the foot of the North York Moors. It contains over 200 species of plants, trees and birds and is also home to a rare flower beetle. It was used in the 13th century as a deer hunting park by the Normans and 300 years later, Neville Castle was built, ruins of which can still be found. There is a public footpath which makes for a wonderful post-dinner walk, as well as a great view.
